Winter lawn damage

After winter's abuse, area lawns both commercial and residential are showing a lot of wear and tear. Many areas were scraped up, rolled over, and continually doused with salt. Chances are much of this grass won't revive itself. Reseeding is definitely essential.

Pennmulch®

During spring cleanups contractors repair this damage. Prepping the bad spots can start with lawn aeration or plain old roughing up the ground for good seed-to-soil contact. Anyone can throw down seed and hope for the best. That alone will not ensure success. Consistent moisture and fertilizer goes a long way to get that green up repair going.

Christensen's stocks three types of seed, seed starter kits, and Lawn Patch for sun and shade. Fertilizer, Pennmulch® and broadcast spreaders round out the one-stop-shop service that can help you make ugly winter damage go away.
