Wholesale Supplier To Landscape Professionals

burst photo on that one...got about 30 pics out of it! A suggestion DID come up from a higher ranking official here (he's a guy with a big mustache) at CPC that said "maybe" we should put these types of pics up on the video screen above the sales counter with captions like "Don't do this!", "Please tarp your material when exiting the nursery", or my favorite caption: "DOH!!". Most contractors would probably get a good laugh out of it while others... well... they may see their pic up there, get angry at us, and break out yodeling.

There's that visual again... That's just disturbing...

So what we're saying is that we will bend over backwards for you to load up your material, and chances are high (expected, really) that we'll even help you tarp it if you're here by yourself. But if it leaves without a tarp, chances are also high one of the 50+ employees will have a pic of it. True story: one contractor left with a bunch of 6' arbs standing up in his pickup without a tarp. That's a double whammie, Minions. He came in about two months later and said that half of them died from the halfway point up and asked what are we going to do about it. Well Minions, sometimes your Cap'n has to be a Jerk on purpose (it comes naturally most other times). I presented the pic with the invoice attached to him, and immediately witnessed a facial expression that could be best described as "defeat". Just keep that in mind, my faithful Minions... We are watching... Well, that may be a bit dramatic. We are throwing a passing glance!

In conclusion, it appears to have been a fantastic year for all those involved with the Green Industry, from the growers all the way down to the final customer, and all of us here at CPC are GRATEFUL for you choosing us as your supplier throughout this season and seasons past. Who knows what's in store for all of us in 2016. If it's going to be a reflection of what 2015 has been... we're going to need a bigger mirror!

Be safe out there, Minions!
